

$31,000 MAY BE LOST BY CANDIDATES

157 Contestants Fail To Poll More Than Necessary Quota

The federal government will collect probably more than $31,000 in lost deposits of candidates in yesterday's election.

On the basis of incomplete returns, in the civilian vote, candidates in the election lost their deposits. The Canadian Press today showed 157 contestants in the big field of 609 had failed to poll more than the necessary quota of electors in scores of constituencies.

In many constituencies more than one candidate lost deposits, as the total of candidates in the national treasury may well exceed $31,000.

Each candidate is required to poll more than the necessary quota of electors in order to win a seat.

Heavy losers appeared to be in the civilian vote, where indications today showed that 48 had lost their deposits in Ontario 49 were possible losers in Alberta 50 in Manitoba 51 in the one province where they appeared as a likelihood of a lost deposit.

The probable losers in other provinces were: Saskatchewan, 12; British Columbia, 10; Nova Scotia, 6; New Brunswick, 2.

VARIETY OF CANDIDATES

Provinces having the largest number of losers presented a variety of candidates, not all of whom were major party, and there were many independent-four candidates for the four seats.

The Yukon was in a similar position with few candidates contesting the one seat.

The probable losers in other provinces were: Saskatchewan, 12; British Columbia, 10; Nova Scotia, 6; New Brunswick, 2.

NO COMPLAINT WITH RESULT

Conservative Leader Says "Electors Of Canada Have Decided"

OTTAWA, March 27.—He had no complaint with the decision of the people of Canada, giving to the Conservative government, and his government, the responsibility to carry on the war effort.

Mr. Bennett, Conservative leader, said after the election results were known Tuesday night.

"The people have spoken and therefore I have very little to say," Mr. Bennett said. "After all we live in a democracy, thank God, and while there are flaws in the method of conducting the vote, it is the will of the people that has been shown, being law-abiding citizens we accept it as their right."

"The electors of Canada have decided to continue as they are. That is their right."

"I have spoken for over six weeks and I am King for about six days and, as apparently we have convinced the electors in inverse proportion to the nation's strength, I spoke, it would certainly appear to be a very broad hint to me to say but little and I shall."

The responsibility continues to be Mr. Bennett's, not that he carries on our war effort but to prepare for the future. That is the decision of the people and I have no complaint."

"It is my earnest hope that Mr. King and his government will go on with our war effort, and that our empire will not only attain success in the war but in the after war as well."

THANKS SUPPORTERS

"I should like to thank very sincerely all those friends and supporters who have supported me throughout Canada. I have worked so hard in behalf of my country. I deeply appreciate their efforts."

And may this Canada that we all love and on which we are united, finally attain that great destiny which surely is its right."

Liberal Candidates Polled 53 Percent Of National Vote

Incomplete compilations today indicated that Liberal candidates polled approximately 53 per cent. of the national vote in rolling up a record party-standing majority in the Dominion election. In the 1935 election 47 per cent. of the vote was polled by the Liberals.

Running under the National Government label, followers of Conservative Leader Mackenzie King won 33 per cent. of the vote total compared to 30 per cent. recorded in 1935. Conservatives in 1935. Because C.C.F. and New Democracy candidates contested, in the main, constituencies in the west where returns are delayed, it was not immediately possible to gauge the popular vote in those areas.

The incomplete compilation based on the civilian vote was $728,400. The Liberal total, 1,869,000, was 53 per cent. of the total vote, 3,520,000. It was certain that both groups would show higher popular vote totals than in the last election when complete results were available.

In both Ontario and Quebec the two old-party parties virtually monopolized the vote, whereas in 1935 about 20 per cent. went to other parties, notably C.C.F. and Reconstruction.

Following is the popular vote by provinces:

CANADA VOTE FEATURED BY LONDON PRESS

Britain Notes With Pride Mackenzie King Triumph

By FRED KACHOCHKA

London Press staff writer EDMONTON, March 27.—The result of Canada's general election yesterday was the front page of the London afternoon papers today, reflecting public interest in the Dominion recently renewed with the arrival in Britain of the Canadian Active Service Force.

The papers used big, bold headlines. The Evening Standard headed: "Mackenzie King Triumph." The Star headed: "Canada's Leader Smashes Victory." Scots papers carried: "Canada Wins War Verdict."

The Morning News proclaimed: "In Britain we take no side in the affairs of a free Dominion, but we are sure that the election was the way in which the Canadians would most powerfully help us in our common aim."

The result of the election caught the step-by-step course of the final editions of most London morning papers. The Daily Express put out a special edition with fresh reports.

Careful descriptions of the poll featured snow-bound roads, big searches and flights captured the interest of readers unaccustomed to follow the complexities of the Canadian political set-up.

Liberal Policies Vindicated State Elected Members

Liberals Stage Victory Parade

"Emphatic endorsement by the Canadian people of the Liberal party will strengthen the hands of the federal government in the war effort," said the speaker, Hon. James A. Macdonald, who Thursday night in thanking his West Edmonton constituents for re-electing him with such an immense majority.

Mr. Macdonald rejoiced in the showing of the Liberal party in Alberta, the best in 25 years. "Alberta has signified its desire to march in step with the rest of the Dominion," he said.

"I would like to say that while I am of course profoundly grateful for the confidence shown to me personally, I am equally happy at the election of the other Liberal members in Alberta, as well as the splendid Liberal showing in this province in general."

PAYS TRIBUTE
"My old ally," Mr. Macdonald went on, "in a brief word of sincere tribute to the Edmonton Bulletin for the splendid support it has given me and the Canadian throughout the whole campaign."

"It was fair and unbiased in its reports of meetings and in its discussions of public issues in its editorial columns. I believe it did much to clarify the liberal position, not only for voters in this city, but all over the northern part of Alberta."

Speaking from the news room of the Edmonton Bulletin after he had been elected by a sensational majority, Mr. Macdonald said: "Today's wonderful vote shows beyond doubt that you can trust the people to decide wisely on the public issues, if the facts are presented to them."

CLEAN CAMPAIGN
The campaign in East Edmonton was strenuous and hard-fought. I feel that it was a clean campaign and an excellent play-off under the conditions. I enjoyed this fight especially with all the more for this reason.

"I extend my thanks to the members of the campaign committee for their splendid cooperation and to all parties and individuals who have helped me in this campaign. I am sure that the results of this election will be a vindication of the Liberal party and its policy."

I am sure that the results of this election will be a vindication of the Liberal party and its policy. I am sure that the results of this election will be a vindication of the Liberal party and its policy."

Liberal sweep in this city and across the Dominion was a well-earned endorsement of the war policies of Mr. Hon. Mackenzie King and a rebuke to the leaders who sought to attain office by a campaign of vilification, said A. F. C. Caselman, M.C., Liberal member for East Edmonton, in commenting on the election.

He was elected in his first contest in the Dominion field. "I wish to thank all those who worked for me and voted for me," said Mr. Caselman. "The Edmonton election has made me a very proud man. It is impossible to thank each one personally but I only wish to say: thank you."

WELCOMES WAR POLICY
"In electing me I feel sure that the voters in East Edmonton are endorsing the whole-hearted approval of the war policy of Premier King. After all this was the main issue in the election."

"As a soldier in the World War and as one who has followed every step of this fight closely, I endorse Prime Minister King's stand and I am gratified that the public has spoken on behalf of the British Empire."

"We can rest assured that Prime Minister King and the Liberal government at Ottawa will co-operate to the fullest extent with the war effort, as has been the case in the past, and there will be no effort to treat for peace at any time."

Standings in Two Edmonton Ridings

The figures tabulated below are the official counts made by the deputy returning officers. The final official count, which will include ballots cast by Edmonton soldiers now overseas, will be made by returning officers April 2, providing the results of the soldiers' poll are received by that date. If they are not in then, the final count will be delayed until such time as they are received.

"Carry On"

The people of Canada were asked to say yesterday by their votes whether they desired the Mackenzie King Government to remain in office and continue to direct the nation's war effort, or whether they had lost confidence in the Government and desired to replace it with a coalition ministry to be organized by Dr. Manion. They replied in the most emphatic terms they have ever used in giving a decision at the polls.

When parliament was dissolved the Government had 180 supporters in the House of Commons, the Conservative opposition 38, as a result of the record-making "handshake" of 1935. In the new House, according to the showing Wednesday morning, the Conservatives will again hold 38 seats, but the Government supporters 175. The votes of the soldiers overseas and at concentration points still have to be taken into the count, but as they voted according to where their homes are located, it is unlikely this will effect the general standing materially. As nearly as is practically possible through the medium of the ballot box, the instructions issued to these two parties by the electors is "as you were."

This is a remarkable demonstration of confidence in a Government that had held office for more than four years and which toward the end of that period had been obliged to make the momentous decision between peace and war. There never can be any quibble as to whether parliament correctly interpreted public opinion last fall when it placed Canada alongside Britain and France in the fight against Hitlerism. Nor any question of whether the Government was warranted in recommending this action to parliament. The voters have given retroactive approval to the decision, and the point is settled.

The direct result of the vote is that the nation has been far more united than expected the country's war effort will continue to do so. They now have a mandate from the electors to that effect, new and plain beyond precedent. Their authority in the matter is no longer subject to question or doubt. Hitherto they have been going on the assumption that they were in line with public opinion, but neither they nor anyone knew that to be a fact. Now it is patent to all. If there has been any hesitation to push preparations or to extend operations because of this element of uncertainty, there need be no more. The Government has orders to proceed full steam ahead.

These orders come from a United Canada, a Canada more united than it ever was before in peace or war. It might easily have been that this war would split the Canadian people more dangerously than did the last one. It has not done that. On the contrary it has been turned into the means of unifying their sentiment and consolidating their strength. There surely is something in which every Canadian can and will rejoice. From the Atlantic to the Pacific our people present a united front to the enemy, and are wholeheartedly resolved to fight aggression to a finish. Alike our Allies and the enemy understand that today.

Alberta Breaks With Isolation

Congratulations are due to the people of Alberta on having broken the tradition of almost complete political isolation of this province from the rest of the Dominion, a tradition which has held throughout most of the last twenty years. Alberta is not so "queer" as it was yesterday in the thought of the residents of the other provinces. The notion that its people were so steeped in local interests and strange theories that they were indifferent to national issues has gone by the board. Sympathetically, as geographically, Alberta is hereafter to be recognized as being part of the Dominion. This is no longer a "hermit" province.

Edmonton and Calgary did a good day's work when they set the pace and led the way in this rapprochement. The two elected Government supporters in one hundred per cent, and two more or other ridings followed suit. As a result Alberta will occupy a larger place than it has occupied for many years in the shaping of national policy. Its representatives will no longer be sitting on the side-lines in parliament; a half-dozen will actively participate in the business of making laws and devising policies in co-operation with those from other parts of the Dominion. Headed by Hon. J. A. MacKinnon, whose magnificent majority in West Edmonton is alike a tribute to him and a credit to his constituents, Alberta's delegation of Government supporters will exert influence in the cabinet and in parliament on behalf of practical and progressive measures for the betterment of production, trade and social conditions. On the war issue they attest the essential unity of interest and feeling of Albertans with their fellow-Canadians.

They Didn't Fail for It

Now that it is all over, Dr. Manion would probably admit, as he did in respect to the election of 1935, that while he predicted success for his party he did not really expect it. He might even go so far as to say there was no substantial reason why he should have expected to win. He made out no convincing case against the Government; and his request to be allowed to set up a so-called National Government was too nebulous to create confidence that the war effort would be as well handled by a company of unknown adventurers as by the present minister.

On the critical side, every accusation that there had been short-sightedness, favoritism or inefficiency in putting the country in readiness before war came, or in organizing its defensive and offensive forces after war came, was met frankly and fully. Quotations from his speeches in parliament and out showed the Doctor had been no more anxious than anyone else in pre-war days to spend money in preparation for what might not happen. As to the conduct of operations after war was declared, more attention was called to the matter the clearer it became that his critical attitude developed suddenly with the calling of the session of parliament in January, when it was supposed there would be unlimited opportunity to work up partisan and sectional feeling by a prolonged wrangle.

The National Government idea was obviously an after-thought born of desperate circumstances, if not imposed by outside influences. It required the scuttling of the Conservative party, of which Dr. Manion was the chosen leader but not the appointed liquidator. The scheme backfired. In British Columbia the party candidates refused point blank to hoist the new banner. In Ontario his friends of the press took the liberty of changing the entire National Government program. In the press aids were exclusively Conservatives. The pretence that he could bring outstanding Liberals or C.C.P.'ers into the "best brains" merger faded out completely.

The country never took the National Government myth seriously. As an alternative to the cabinet of known, trusted and experienced men who composed the Government, it was never in the running. That, with all respect to Dr. Manion, is greatly to the credit of the public. No grown person supposes the present or any other cabinet to be composed of supermen, or to have never made mistakes. But as a body of administrators who are well known and of good repute, and as a spectral company of unnamed persons for whom nobody could vouch, there was never much room to doubt which the sane-minded voter would choose.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Death has called a veteran of the newspaper game, and one of my earliest mentors, in the person of Tom King. When I first knew him he represented at Ottawa the old Toronto World. Later he and I worked together on the Toronto Globe. For the past many years he served as Ottawa correspondent.

A GALLANT the Winnipeg Free Press, Death SOBBES overtook him at Washington at the age of 78. I mention his age because nearly a quarter century ago he was given six weeks in which to settle up his affairs and die. Tom had been ill while at work in the Ottawa Press Gallery. Rusty to a hospital, four doctors examined him—three of them members of parliament. Dr. Jerry Chabot of Ottawa, Dr. Peter McGibbon of Brantford and Dr. M. R. Blake of Winnipeg. The medical quartet agreed that Tom had cancer and would be lucky to last another six weeks. As a last chance, they recommended an operation, and put Tom on a diet to build up his strength for the ordeal.

After three weeks of spartan dieting, thinking his chance of survival very slim, Tom decided that if death was to be his lot he might as well die with a full stomach. He persuaded a sympathetic nurse to grill him a good steak. After he got the steak down he felt an urge to get up and dress, and go for a last walk. Feeling ill he walked back to his apartment and returned to hospital. All three of the physicians died in the next few days. Tom died on a diet to build up his strength for the ordeal.

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review draws attention to an important reform which characterizes the war effort in Canada. Under the present system depots in Canada provide drafts for units overseas, instead of (as in the last war) organizing with full staffs, from colonel down, battalions which could never go to the front except as drafts to reinforce units already in the field. Those familiar with the Great War will remember how battalions were overseas only to be broken up for reinforcements; the officers who organized them in many instances returned to Canada. The country is well rid of this system.—Victoria Times.

The sailing of the great steamships Mauretania and Queen Mary from New York makes news of the stuff which this war has made familiar in all the elements of excitement, mystery, suspense.

Wherever the ships are bound, their leaving New York is at least the assurance of several things of great importance to us and our side in the war.

It is the sign of the growing mastery of the Allied sea power in all the seven seas. It means that in all the vast reaches of the Pacific, and in most of the Atlantic as well, the fairways of the sea have been swept clear of enemy raiders.

It means also, and perhaps still more significantly, that the Atlantic Ocean is no longer a sea of mystery and peril. It is a sea of safety and security. It is a sea of peace and plenty. It is a sea of life and hope.

Your Health — By Dr. Frank McCoy

Today's article will discuss some of the questions commonly asked about eczema. Here is the first question: "What are the symptoms of eczema?" This type of question comes from people who have developed some skin disease and who wish to compare their own symptoms with those of eczema to decide if their own disease is or not they have eczema or something else.

The principal symptom of eczema is itching of the skin. A burning sensation, redness, the formation of blisters, the oozing of a sticky fluid, the coming of dry cracked scales, and the appearance of scales, are other possible symptoms. However, the symptoms found in any given case may be modified to some extent by the type of eczema present. For example in "weeping" eczema, there is an oozing of a sticky fluid from the skin. In this eczema may be absent. On the other hand, different types of eczema may be found in the same patient.

Here is the second question: "What are the causes of eczema?" The causes may be divided into two groups: Those coming from the inside of the body, and those coming from the outside. The inner causes include a peculiar inheritance of the skin which gives it a tendency toward developing this particular kind of irritation; incorrect diet; constipation; and so on.

Outer causes come from the outside which are set off the eczema in a susceptible individual include chafing of the skin from the rubbing of clothing irritation produced by exposing the skin to various substances and in some cases exposure to heat and cold.

Now for a very common question: "Is eczema contagious?" This skin disorder is not contagious and the fact that one member of a family has it does not endanger the others.

"Should patches of skin affected by eczema be washed with soap and water?" Generally, the use of these agents will tend to make the eczema worse. It is often advisable to avoid the use of soap and water on involved areas and to use olive oil and clean absorbent cotton as a cleanser. Tear the coating off a small piece at a time, and use each piece only once, discarding it after it has touched the skin. By using soap and water, the eczema may spread, whereas the olive oil and clean method of cleaning will tend to avoid this difficulty.

Some of my readers now having eczema are asking me for my article on the subject. The article dealing with the disorder in adults is called "Eczema" while the article discussing the disorder in infants is "Baby's Eczema." Either article will be sent when you request it by writing to me, enclosing a self-addressed envelope and a fee of 10 cents.

Faculty Tea Is Event Of Wednesday

Silver-hued of lovely candlelight blooms in tones of yellow, white and orange, and flanked by tall, slender white taper in silver candleholders, comprised the sprightly arrangement on the tea table in the lounge of Alhambra hall on Wednesday afternoon when members of the Faculty Women's club entertained at tea.

The occasion was the annual meeting of the club, and welcoming the guests were Countess W. Ingham, Mrs. E. H. Gowan, Mrs. A. E. O'Connell, Mrs. Walter Johnson, Mrs. Donald McLean, and Mrs. F. H. Gowan.

Freight from the huge fireplace in the lounge, spring flowers and lovely tea table created the setting of the affair at which upwards of 120 members were present. During the afternoon a number of musical numbers were given arranged by Mrs. Mack Leary. Mrs. Gowan is program convener.

Presiding at the ice-cream-covered table when tea was served were Mrs. George H. Stier, Mrs. M. J. Palmer, Mrs. P. Talbot and Mrs. P. W. Warren. Assisting with the serving were Mrs. O. F. ### FINISH HOUR

Mrs. W. A. R. Kerr presided at the business hour, and an interesting feature of the afternoon's work was the presentation of a letter to Mrs. Kenneth W. Neaby and to the Hon. Dr. S. J. Gowan. Mrs. Neaby is leaving with her husband, Dr. Neaby, on Friday for Winnipeg, where he will reside, and in token of farewell was presented the recipient of the letter, Mrs. Neaby, a letter from the club.

Spring Coats Are Happy News For Budgeteers

Chic Coats Form Backlog For Spring and Summer Wear and Prove Ideal Basis For All-Season Smartness

By MARIAN YOUNG
NEW YORK. The popularity of coats is particularly good news for the budget-minded woman who likes to be able to wear her spring clothes all summer. With the right coat and a couple of silk dresses to wear under it, she'll have no street wardrobe problem from Easter through July and into the late summer.

The fitted sweater with subtly flared hemline retains first place. The coat—three-quarter or full-length—is importantly featured, too. Capes are staging a come-back, the slanted, broad and elongated stole silhouette are the freshest with the latest. The latter is usually referred to as a tunic type.

BUY COAT BEFORE

Twists and other smooth surface coats are widely used. So are monochrome tones. Navy, black and gray, in the order named, are color choices. But royal blue, golden beige, green, mustard and muted yellows are prominently displayed.

Fundamental principle of assembling a spring wardrobe which does include a suit is to buy a coat first, of course. Unless you can have more than one coat better choose it at least in a color which can be worn with a variety of styles.

BOXY, STRAIGHT COAT FOR GENERAL UTILITY

For the woman who wants a double-duty coat, a straight-front, rather boxy model of monochrome tones is recommended. With a wide collar and a fur skirt, this is dressy enough for any day—day or night. And, if you wear the fur skirt, it's perfect over a flannel suit or a light wool short-sleeved suit. It's a wardrobe staple in and around a suburb.

Evening Makeup Tips For Use At All Times

Right or Wrong About People

By DONALD A. LAIRD
P.H.D., R.D.

Author of "How to Improve Your Brain Power"

Education is one of the country's big business. Thousands of people are borrowing on their life insurance, mortgaging the family house, and skimping in many ways in order to send their children to college to learn something.

There are other thousands of ambitious young men and women—mostly men—who are working diligently all day in office or shop and then devoting part of their evenings to study of attending night classes.

It is all this serious striving to get more knowledge worth the time and money it takes? You can bet it is worth it, provided the study is done seriously—and also provided it does not go to the person's head.

That is the chief handicap with having a little knowledge; it goes to many people's heads. Little people apparently cannot stand a little learning.

These are the folks, and they are numerous, who have taken two night courses in accounting and get the feeling that this warrants their spouting off opinions on child health, detective work, and the value of stainless steel.

There is that dangerous tendency for the person to imagine that as he gets to know more in one line he is automatically becoming an expert in everything else.

And to give to show off their information, the main thing they should get out of college was the realization they knew a little that they should keep their lips sealed and never try to give out their information.

THE BRITISH DID NOT ORIGINATE THE CONVOY
SYSTEM

The convoy system of protecting ships from submarine attack, which is usually attributed to the British, is an American invention which was originated by Admiral Sims of the United States Navy during the 1914 World War.

It was during the 1914 World War that the American navy, under the command of Admiral Sims, was the first to use the convoy system.

DESIGN NO. X-181—BABY OUTFIT IN CROCHET

It is a simple matter to crochets the small shoes, booties and cap for the new baby.

By ALICIA HART

It's a mistake for any woman to dangle news about and directions for applying evening makeup by shrugging. "But I wear formal clothes so seldom!"

It doesn't matter whether you are in formal clothes or not. Artificial light calls for special cosmetics.

Beides offering a practical way to achieve a little added glamour, regardless of whether you are in a school dress or a sophisticated dress—evening makeup can and will help to dramatize your best features and make less attractive ones less conspicuous.

LOTS OF TRICKS WITH LIGHT AND SHADE

For instance, if nature endowed you with altogether too little chin, try using a light-shade cosmetic foundation film on the chin, receding chin and see what happens.

Or, if you want to emphasize the hollows in your cheeks, try using dark shade foundation in them and a lighter shade on the cheek bones above.

Remember that light foundation highlights, and therefore makes any feature more prominent. A dark shade achieves just the opposite effect.

For subtle evening makeup, it is necessary to have one shade of foundation film which matches exactly your natural skin tones.

SKILL WILL COME WITH PRACTICE

With these three, the woman who wants to conceal a double chin and emphasize high cheekbones would blend the matching foundation over face, throat and forehead.

Then she would carefully blend a dark shade of the foundation over the double chin and a speck of the light shade on each cheekbone.

Afterward, she would apply rouge and powder in the regular manner, using powder which matches her skin.

Such a makeup job takes time and practice, of course. But it can be very successful.

SLIP COVERS WITH PERMANENT FIT

If you plan to make new slip covers this spring, follow the modern trend for the washable tailored style that is fitted like upholstery.

You will find no difficulty in fitting these covers if you buy material that makes shrinkage allowance unnecessary.

When you select the cretonne, crash or rep, make sure it has a guarantee on the selvage that shrinkage is limited to one per cent.

It is such a small amount that you may cut your slip cover true to the measurement of the furniture.

There are trimmings, too, in many widths of welts, bias bindings and pleatings which carry the same guarantee of washability.

With those materials any home decorator can now make slip covers that fit the furniture like a glove fits his hand.

Many Follow a Common Pattern

Made in the face of danger! Perhaps you have had such a dream. Famine stalked you, but you couldn't utter a sound.

Should you have left such a dream or does it have a meaning you should heed?

Nearly all your dreams express emotions hidden in your subconscious mind—and those hidden emotions shape your life more than you realize.

To discover them, to get an understanding of your real self, read your dreams.

You may find perhaps that they follow a common pattern. To dream of being mist in the face of danger implies a lack of self-confidence.

Of similar meaning is a dream of being unfettered in public. To have such dreams is a warning to revise your attitude toward life, yourself.

In sleep, do you endeavor to climb ladders, are you abandoned in dark cellars? A dream pattern that reveals a yearning sense of fulfillment. Or do you dream of wild animals chasing you?

Find the true meanings of these and other typical dreams in our 32-page booklet, "A Well-known psychologist explains common dream patterns." It will help you understand your inner problems, emotions, and the nature of mankind.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband wants me to ask my women friends to our house so that they may flirt with him. He insists that I receive his mistress a friend and go about with her and invite her to my parties because he says it is a precaution to him; that it causes less gossip and is less dangerous for him. Does a man love his wife when he harasses her about other women? I say nothing to his loving affairs with them. If I don't have them forced on my attention, I have offered to give him his mistress, but he doesn't want that. Apparently he gets a kick out of seeing how miserable he can make me watching him make love to other women. What shall I do?

A WIFE

Answer: I had thought that Patient Griselda had no counter-part in this day of independent women, but you must be her incarnation. Combine some of yesterday's indignities and humiliations that your husband is putting on you.

It is bad enough for a wife to be unfaithful to his wife, but he adds insult to injury when he feeds his own house by bringing his deplorable women into it and forcing his wife to receive them.

No man is such an unmitigated cad as the one who hides behind his wife's skirts and makes her respectability condone his immorality.

Your Dreams Reveal Suppressed Emotions

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

There will never be any life-overs from well-planned diets made of refrigerators. Combine some of yesterday's indignities and humiliations that your husband is putting on you.

It is bad enough for a wife to be unfaithful to his wife, but he adds insult to injury when he feeds his own house by bringing his deplorable women into it and forcing his wife to receive them.

BRITISH SHIP SINKS WITH CARGO OF KRUSCHEN

Canada bound with 50,000 bales

A grave interruption in Kruschen supplies for Canada occurred recently when a special shipment of 50,000 Kruschen Giant Packages was sent to the bottom. The balance of the supply of Kruschen Packages, sent on other ships, has been landed and distributed through the Kruschen supply. Special concern was felt because this particular shipment was of the Giant (Five Trial) size which contains the regular package plus the free trial package offered at the regular price. Your local druggist still has a supply—but we urge immediately! We urge regular Kruschen users to get their packages at once to avoid disappointment. If you suffer from rheumatic pains, frequent headaches, indigestion, dizziness, constipation and other ailments frequently caused by constipation, just try Kruschen.

Minute Make-Ups

One of the newest brunettes finding fashion shows blonded tips in curls piled high on the head. The gleams that the ends of the hair are slightly bleached or blonded to bring out the lights of very dark hair. This is effective but should be done by a professional to get good results.

During the first World War, two tons of chemical plants in day many produced 400 tons of chlorine, 30 tons of phosphorus, 300 tons of sulphuric acid, 200 tons of mustard gas, and 200 tons of chlorophyll.

Wash carrots and cook until tender. Peel and cut in half lengthwise. Cook onion and green pepper in butter until slightly browned and add rice and ham. Season with salt and pepper. Fry stuffing on carrots halves, sprinkle with crumbs and bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees F. Serve with cheese sauce.

SPINACH CROQUETTES (Serves Four to Six)

One tablespoon butter, 1 cup chopped mushrooms (fresh or canned), 1 cup thick white sauce, 1 egg, 1/2 cup grated cheese, 1/2 cup onion juice, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper.

Saute the mushrooms in butter. If desired, mix the mushrooms and onion with the white sauce, and add the seasonings. Chill one hour in the icebox. Form into croquettes, roll in bread crumbs, then in beaten egg, and then in crumbs again. Fry in deep hot fat until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper, and serve with or without cheese sauce.

The salesgirl who had directed Ann to the balcony crossed the outer office and stopped short. Ann and Paul did not know that she was there.

"Gee—" she said, and softly closed the door.
